

Read This Letter and Watch for Changes in Thought Patterns (Shifts in subject matter) – and List Them in the Box

Dear _____,

I am finally glad to report that things are going better for us here. I am doing better after my surgery and rehab. I also went to the doctor about my headaches and she was able to help me with those. Also, the scare we had last month over finding something in my blood work, turned out to be nothing. I am feeling better than I have for months. I am back at work now (after missing about ten days).

Things in the family going well. Both of the children are doing better in school after we got them into a new school. My wife, Susie, has less stress in her life now that our kitchen remodel is over. We rejoice that her sister and brother-in-law seem to have worked their marriage problems out. We spent many hours with them trying to help salvage their marriage. With their situation better, Susie and I are able to spend more time for ourselves.

I still work at the same office, but I have changed jobs. I am still doing the same kind of work, but this job is less stressful. I have a new boss, who is far better than the one I had last year. My hours are a little more flexible and I have more PTO. This is really going to be good for the family and my health.

Things at church have really changed. We have had several place membership due to moving into the area. We baptized five in the last four months. We appointed elders two months ago. That has made a world of difference in how smoothly things are going. We are so thankful that we were able to appoint three men to that office.

Bob
